THE DAILY HERALD.

OFFICIAL COUNTY AND CITY JOURNAL.

Jesse O. Wheeler, Proprietor.
Entered at the Postoffice, Brownsville, Texas, as second-class matter.

Consolidated in 1893 with the Daily Cosmopolitan which was published in Brownsville, for sixteen years.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 25, 1904.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

We are authorized to announce the name of the HON. JNO. N. GARNER, as a candidate for re-election to Congress from this, the Fifteenth District, subject to the action of the democratic party.

SAN ANTONIO is to inaugurate relations with Brownsville by a big trade excursion to this place over the Lott railroad on July 5. Contrary to the usual order of excurions, this is not to be merely a pleasure-seeking trip, and the people taking advantage of it will be far different from the usual crowds that go on excursions. These visitors will be active, wide-awake business men, whose object is to establish trade relations with our people for the mutual benefit of both San Antonio and Brownsville.
It need scarcely be pointed out that such visitors as these will be of more than ordinary benefit to Brownsville, and that our people should do their utmost to make a favorable impression upon them.
Brownsville must put on her best bib and tucker and extend to her San Antonio guests the most cordial welcome.

THE esteemed Hidalgo Advance shows its welcome phiz. on THE HERALD exchange desk this week for the first time in several weeks.
Where has the Advance been wandering?

WORK is being pushed actively on the Hidalgo branch of the Lott railroad, and our fortunate up-river neighbors will be annexed to the great state of Texas by bands of steel almost as soon as Brownsville.

WONDERFUL ARTESIAN WELL.

Spouts Fish from Depth of Eight Hundred and Fifty Feet.

Sioux Falls, S. D., May 20.— The Grant artesian well, situated near Iroquois, is a wonder in its way. It is throwing out fish averaging about two inches in length.

The well is about 850 feet deep.
As the fish are not blind, as is the case with those native to subterranean waters, it is a mystery how they got into the artesian basin which underlies most of South Dakota.

The artesian basin, so geologists declare, is formed of a porous, water-bearing rock, instead of being an underground lake of gigantic proportions, as was once supposed.

There is little doubt that the fish which come from the artesian well near Iroquois are native to living surface water, which indicates that the artesian basin has water filled fissures that enable fish to travel several hundred miles beneath the surface of the earth.

The fish are believed to have entered the artesian basin at the point from which the basin receives its supply, which is in the Black Hills, where the water-bearing rock which forms the artesian crops out to the surface. The fish are, it is thought, native to the Black Hills streams. A distance of 300 miles separates the point where they are supposed to have entered the basin and the well through which they are coming to the surface.

The Marble Falls Messenger is responsible for the following: "Peaches are now grown with initials or monograms on them. The monogram or crest is cut out in paper and pasted on the peaches while growing. As soon as the fruit is ripe the paper patterns are removed, when a facsimile of the monogram or other design used is found picked out in most delicate green, while the rest of the fruit will be found rosy and deep hued."

Butter, fresh butter, best to be had, at Leo Wise. 5-10-1f.

LIVE FREIGHT FROM BROWNVILLE.

Shipment of Birds and Reptiles Reaches Galveston in Good Order.

Galveston News.
The steamship Manteo, which arrived in port early yesterday morning, brought as a part of her cargo a large collection of birds, animals and reptiles indigenous to the Rio Grande region, which collection will be distributed among the zoological gardens of the North, some going to the St. Louis Exposition and others to the Smithsonian Institution at Washington.

The collection was made by the well-known naturalist, Prof. F. B.
Armstrong, who has spent many years of his life in the collection of material for scientific purposes and for public exhibition.

The collection brought to this port on the Manteo is one of the largest ever sent out of the Brown-sville district, and embraces every known species of duck found in that locality, also rare egrets, cranes, ibis, spoonbills, waders and herons of every description. Many land birds are represented, as well as reptiles of various species, besides beavers and other animals.
The captives have evidently received kindly treatment, as many of them appear to be almost as tame as though born in captivity.

While the Manteo has on various occasions brought collections of animal life indigenous to the southwestern part of Texas and Mexico, the collection which arrived yesterday is the largest ever accredited to that vessel. As soon as it had become generally known that the vessel was in port with a curious cargo many citizens of the city made their way to pier 20, where they were able to see at least a part of the collection:

COTTON TREE IN MEXICO.

Experiments Very Successful—May Revolutionize Cotton Industry in that Country.

Mexican Herald.
Experiments are being made throughout the republic with the new cotton tree (algodon arbol), so called to distinguish it from the old cotton plant. A great deal has been said and written about this tree, which promises to be another very important source of prosperity for this privileged country.

The latest experiments were made by Esteban Chazaro in his hacienda of La Concepcion, in the state of Oaxaca. Cotton plants and cotton trees were planted at the same time. The result has been that in equal circumstances the trees have grown from three to four feet more than the common cotton shrubs and promise a much more abundant crop. After these experiments a large tract of land will be planted with cotton trees.

A cotton grower of the state of Jalisco, who has carefully followed the increasing popularity of the cotton tree, estimates that so far over 20,000,000 of seeds have been planted throughout the republic, always with good results, as the cotton tree, unlike the cotton shrub, is not affected by cold or hot climate.

Owners of cotton mills think that when the exploitation of this tree is fully developed, there will be a revolution in the cotton market which will result in an incredible diminution of prices of cotton articles, since cotton will be cultivated everywhere at an extremely light cost. Of course this will be a great benefit to Mexico, where cotton cloth is so extensively consumed.

TEXAS NOTES.

Twelve citizens of Whitesboro are under arrest charged with intimidating negroes.

A large colony of Dunkards from Indiana will settle in Northwest Texas.

A trolley line is projected between Houston and Galveston.

In the intercollegiate athletic meet at Austin Saturday Vanderbilt University was badly beaten by the Texas University, Texas scoring 67 to Vanderbilt 40.
